The Gay Festive Paul

The following is clipped from the San Francisco News Letter, of April 30th: King David he sat on his castle top— The King was of sorrowful mind; And he drank his brandy and ginger pop, And thought of his absent Queen.

Begone dull care ! " said a courtier then-"Alas, my King, you are sad! Her Majesty soon will be home again. And with many an English "fad." "True I grieve for the Queen," said the pensive King,
"And my tears fall like summerrain;
But ah, there's another—a darker thing—
Which oppresses my soul with pain.

My trusty Paul Neumann has sailed away From me and his loving pards; He'll be here again, on the tenth of May, With some new device of the cards. He's quick to learn, is Statesman Paul, And ready to teach the court
The newest games, and he loves to fall
On the innocent, guileless sport. "With the last, you remember, Sir Neuman won The crown land, a slice of the wharf, A wagon and team from the chamberlain's son,

And trust me my friends, those tricks of the "coast," Which he teaches us here, I know, Alae, to my own and my courtiers' cost, Are the source of financial woe." His Majesty sobbed and dozed away, And dreamed, with a pang and a moan, That Paul Neumann had won, in a night and a day, The whole of the English loan. Consolidation of Churches-

A memorial, looking to the consolidation of the Fort-street and Bethel Union congregations, has been printed and circulated by the members of the former church. The following is a copy of the memorial: "The union of the Bethel Union and Fort-street churches at the present time would result in the advancement of Christ's Kingdom in Honolulu and the Hawaiian

"At the time of the organization of the Fort-street Church the especial duty of the Bethel Union Church was its labor for the thousands of seamen for the whaling fleet, which at that time made Honolulu its headquarters. 'To do this occupied and taxed its paster so that it was impossible for him to give that attention to the growing foreign population resident here which it required. To meet that need the Fort-street Church was organized, and to that work has especially given its efforts during its entire history. The decline of the whaling interest, withdrawing as it did the great fleet of vessels, with its thousands of sailers, from our harbor, together with the rise of the sugar interest, launched these Islands upon a new ern of development so different from the former that great and permanent changes in the political, social and religious life of the community have followed. One consequence is that where the two churches found separate and independent fields of labor, the one among the transient, the other among the settled population, the situation to-day is that each now gives its strength to the work among the permanent residents of the city, and we have two sister churches with the same creed, the same form of organization and the same purposes, seeking to secure for the same class of population that support and endorsement which each must have to

Should the proposed consolidation take place, the church will be known as the "Congregational Church of Honolulu." To-night, May 17th, action will be taken on the above question The Irish Question. London, May 5 .- In the House of Commons, this afternoon, the consideration of the question of breach of privilege in the Times Dillon case was resumed. No member the conduct of the Times was a breach of privilege, and that the House take notice of it, Speaker Peel put before the House the amendment of Sir Edward Clark, Solicitor-General, that the House decline to treat the Times' publication as a breach of privilege.

The Parnellites at once challenged a divi-amendment thus became a substitute motion.

Gladstone, who on rising was loudly cheered, moved an amendment that a com mittee be appointed to inquire into the charge of the amendment and 219 against it.

Bradlaugh then resumed the debate rising to speak on the motion of Lewis that of willful falsehood made against Dillon in the Times of Monday. He said he did not in-tend to suggest that the inquiry go beyond the article referred to. He objected to Lord Randolph Churchill calling him the leader of the party of separation, and he perfectly un-derstood why Lord Randolph did not call it the party of home rule. There was a future before Lord Randolph in which home-rule plans might figure as convenient to propose. Cheers. Turning to the question of privilege he said it was unfortunate that the Government proposed to take the present step against an Irish member, while inflicting upon the Irish people by means of a permu-nent coercion bill the brand of perpetual dishonor. Why take the case into a court of law? Was it certain that Dillon would get a verdict, whatever might be the proof, in a case where Parliament had declared the sharges against a member no breach of privilege? Nearly thirty years ago he went as a commissioner to the Ionian Islands. The Times then said the Ionian Assembly was committing treason, and that the commissioner was aiding and abetting the Assembly.

He thought these charges required redress.
He took the best advice on this subject, but all his advisers said he could not depend upon securing a fair verdict. The Irish members would still be in an unfavorable position in a jury trial, and it was no wonder they preferred the tribunal of the House, The House was a perfectly competent tribunal, and, indeed, the only complete one. The precedents were all on the side of the appointment of a committee. There was the case of Butt, in 1854, when it was held that the accusation that members were hungry for places to which were attached salaries and pensions deserved inquiry. After citing a number of other precedents, in all of which the charge was less grave than those brought against Dillon, he challenged the Govern-ment to establish a single precedent where the prosecution had been ordered without the House having previously condemned the act upon which the prosecution was based. Ha appealed to the Government to alter their determination, which otherwise might lead to a crisis of a most serious and momentous importance. The Irish members, who had en maligued to an enormous extent, asked for the particulars, a course which the ma-jority refused, forgetting that they were actjority refused, forgetting that they were acting against the minority representing the nation. [Parnellite cheers.] The Government could yet, on the grounds of reason, prudence and precedent, accept this amendment, showing the country that they were determined at least to give the Irish members full justice, even indulgent justice, seeing their honor and character were at stake. [Cheers.] [Cheers.]

LONDON, May 1.- The new budget, cleverly framed to catch the popular eye, is awaiting the action of Parliament, and Goschen, its father, is worried at the prospect of endless coercion talk, preventing all other business in the House. Goschen is daily more disliked by Irishmen and his former associates, the Liberale.

The Cost of the Kaimiloa.

The following list of monthly salaries for officers and crew of H. M.'s S. Kaimiles appears in the Harcaii Paeaisa. There are yet some salaries unaccounted for which raise the expense of the vessel to nearly $2000 per month, and then there is food and other expenses to provide for: such as coal, sails, marine stores, etc. As the Pacama suggests, such expenditure must result in an increase

The Agricultural Show.

The Agricultural Show was held at Horti-cultural Gardens, King street, on Saturday

Though public attention had been called to this affair for some months past, it has not proved the success which was hoped. For some reason or other there seems to be a lack of interest in the matter, and though some very beautiful plants and other things were displayed, there was not that profusion of exhibits which all friends of the society had hoped. The cause may perhaps be assigned to the season. Had the show been held a couple of months later it might have held a souple of months later it might have been better, or it may be that the manage-ment was not sufficiently energetic in drum-ming up exhibitors, or finally it may be put to the natural apathy of dwellers in a tropi-cal clime. To whatever the cause may be cal clime. To whatever the cause may be assigned, however, the fact of remains that the show was not what it might have been. There were 107 exhibits in all, and of these eighty-one came-under the head of Class I. Horticulture, while the other five classes, viz.: Dairy Produce, Agriculture, Domestic Manufactures, Poultry and Birds, and Miscellaneous only mustered twenty-six exhibits among them. Agriculture was a great hibits among them. hibits among them. Agriculture was a great disappointment; in a country whose main-stay is agricultural products, there was but one exhibitor. In the morning but few visitors appeared on the grounds, but after the moon hour quite a number came out, and from then till
